Madeleine K. Albright is Chair of Albright Stonebridge Group, a global strategy firm, and Chair of Albright Capital Management LLC, an affiliated investment advisory firm focused on emerging markets. Dr. Albright received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor, from President Obama on May 29, 2012. She was the 64th Secretary of State of the United States. In 1997, Dr. Albright was named the first female Secretary of State and became, at that time, the highest-ranking woman in the history of the US government. From 1993 to 1997, Dr. Albright served as the US Permanent Representative to the United Nations and was a member of the President's Cabinet. She is a Professor in the Practice of Diplomacy at the Georgetown University Walsh School of Foreign Service. Dr. Albright chairs the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs and serves as president of the Truman Scholarship Foundation and on the US Defense Department's Defense Policy Board. She is currently at work on a book, Facism: A Warning, and is the author of numerous New York Times bestsellers, including Prague Winter: A Personal Story of Remembrance and War, 1937-1948 (2012). Dr. Albright received a BA with honors from Wellesley College, and master's and doctorate degrees from Columbia University's Department of Public Law and Government, as well as a certificate from its Russian Institute.

Anthony Clark Arend is Senior Associate Dean of Faculty and Graduate Affairs in the School of Foreign Service, and Professor of Government and Foreign Service at Georgetown University. He served as Director of the Master of Science in Foreign Service program from 2008-2017. With Professor Christopher C. Joyner, he founded the Institute for International Law & Politics at Georgetown and served as co-director of the Institute from 2003-2008. He is also an adjunct professor of law at the Georgetown University Law Center. Prior to coming to Georgetown, he was a Senior Fellow at the Center for National Security Law at the University of Virginia School of Law. He has also served as an articles editor for the Virginia Journal of International Law. Dr. Arend's teaching interests are in the areas of international law, international organizations, international relations, international legal philosophy, and constitutional law of US foreign relations. Dr. Arend received a PhD and an MA in foreign affairs from the Woodrow Wilson Department of Government and Foreign Affairs of the University of Virginia. He received a BSFS, magna cum laude, from the Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University.

Barbara K. Bodine is Director of the Institute for the Study of Diplomacy and Distinguished Professor in the Practice of Diplomacy. Ambassador Bodine's 33-year Foreign Service career was spent primarily in the Middle East, with a focus on security and counterterrorism. She served as US Ambassador to Yemen from 1997 through much of 2001, and also served in Kuwait and Iraq. In 1991, she received the Secretary of State's Award for Valor for her work in occupied Kuwait. After leaving the Foreign Service, Ambassador Bodine was a Fellow at Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and a Visiting Professor at the University of California, Santa Barbara. From 2007-2014 she was a Lecturer in Public and International Affairs and Director of the Scholars in the Nation's Service Initiative at the Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton University. She is also a member of the Board of Directors of the American Academy of Diplomacy. Ambassador Bodine earned Abilene Christian University, MPA from Harvard Kennedy School, and an MDiv and ThD in religion and society from Harvard Divinity School.

Mo Elleithee is the founding Executive Director of Georgetown University's Institute of Politics and Public Service, the first institute of its kind in the nation's capital. Before launching the institute in 2015, he spent two decades as one of the top communications strategists in the Democratic Party, most recently as Communications Director and chief spokesman of the Democratic National Committee. A veteran of four presidential campaigns, Elleithee was Senior Spokesman and Traveling Press Secretary on Hillary Clinton's 2008 campaign. He served as a senior advisor and strategist for Senator Tim Kaine's campaigns for governor and the US Senate, and has worked on numerous other statewide and local races in every region of the country. A frequent political commentator on television and radio, Mo was named a FOX News contributor in 2016. He was a founding partner of Hilltop Public Solutions, one of Washington's leading political consulting and public affairs firms. He has been recognized on Washington Life Magazine's "Power 100" list; as a "Top Influencer" by Campaigns & Elections Magazine; and was featured on Washingtonian Magazine's "Guest List." Elleithee earned his bachelor's degree from Georgetown's School of Foreign Service and an MA in political management from The George Washington University.

Robert Gallucci is Distinguished Professor in the Practice of Diplomacy at Georgetown's Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service. Ambassador Gallucci served as Dean of the School of Foreign Service for 13 years until he left in July 2009 to become president of the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation. He was appointed dean in 1996, after 21 years of distinguished service in a variety of government positions, focusing on international security. As Ambassador-at-Large and Special Envoy for the US Department of State, he dealt with the threats posed by the proliferation of ballistic missiles and weapons of mass destruction. He was chief US negotiator during the North Korean nuclear crisis of 1994, and served as Assistant Secretary of State for Political Military Affairs and as Deputy Executive Chairman of the UN Special Commission overseeing the disarmament of Iraq following the first Gulf War. During his tenure as dean, Gallucci led in the creation of the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service in Qatar and also oversaw the creation of the Program for Jewish Civilization and the Mortara Center for International Studies. His publications include Going Critical: The First North Korean Nuclear Crisis (2004) with Joel Wit and Daniel Poneman. Ambassador Gallucci earned his bachelor's degree at the State University of New York at Stony Brook and his master's and doctoral degrees at Brandeis University.

Joel Hellman is Dean of the Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University and Distinguished Professor in the Practice of Development. He became dean in July 2015 after 25 years working on some of the most complex issues of governance, conflict and the political economy of development as both a scholar and practitioner. He served at the World Bank in many senior roles including Chief Institutional Economist; Director of the Center for Conflict, Security and Development in Nairobi, Kenya, where he led the Bank's engagement with the most challenging fragile and conflict-affected states around the world; and coordinator of the World Bank's response in Indonesia to the devastating Asian tsunami. He was the Senior Political Counselor at the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development in London, leading its political engagement and analysis on Russia, Central Asia, and Eastern Europe. As a scholar, Dr. Hellman was a political science professor at Harvard University and Columbia University, focusing on the politics of economic reform. His numerous publications include “Governance Gone Local: Does Decentralization Improve Accountability” with Jose Edgardo Campos (2005). Born and raised in Brooklyn, New York, he is a graduate of Williams College. He has a PhD from Columbia University and an MPhil from Oxford University.

Nasser S. Judeh was appointed to the Senate of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan on July 9, 2017. He served as Minister of Foreign Affairs from 2009 to 2017 as well as Deputy Prime Minister from 2015 to 2017. He was the longest-serving Foreign Minister in Jordan’s history. Judeh previously held cabinet positions serving as Minister of Information (1998-1999), Minister of State for Media and Communications (2007-2009), and official spokesman for the government of Jordan (from 1998-1999, 2005-2007, and 2007-2009). He presided over the United Nations Security Council several times during Jordan’s two-year membership on the Council in 2015 and 2016. Jordan also held the presidency of the 143rd Arab League ministerial council for six months in 2015. Earlier in his career, Judeh was the Director General of the Jordan Radio and Television Corporation (the national broadcaster) (1994-1998) and served in the Royal Hashemite Court from 1985-1992 during the reign of King Hussein. He established and directed the Jordan Information Bureau in London from 1992-1994. In September 2017, UN Secretary-General António Guterres invited Judeh to join the High-Level Advisory Board on Mediation. Judeh graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Foreign Service from the Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University.

Peter F. Krogh is the president of the Seal Abatement Coalition headquartered on Nantucket Island, where he resides. Previously he was, for 15 years, Distinguished Professor of International Affairs at the Walsh School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University and, prior to that, Dean of the Walsh School of Foreign Service for 25 years. He has been honored by the governments of Austria and Germany, and by Georgetown University with an honorary degree and an endowed chair in his name. The honors program of the Walsh School also bears his name. While at Georgetown, Dr. Krogh moderated 225 PBS television programs on foreign affairs that are now catalogued in the Dean Peter Krogh Digital Foreign Affairs Archives in the university’s library. Dr. Krogh served on the board of the Carlisle Companies and on the boards of multiple foreign affairs organizations. He has published numerous articles on American foreign policy and diplomacy and, recently, a book entitled From the Dean’s Chair: A Decade of Reflections on World Affairs. Dr. Krogh is a graduate of Harvard University and received his master’s and PhD degrees at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University.

Joanna Lewis is Associate Professor of Science, Technology and International Affairs (STIA) at Georgetown University’s Walsh School of Foreign Service. Her research focuses on energy, environment, and innovation in China, including renewable energy industry development and climate change policy. She leads a National Science Foundation-funded project on International Partnerships and Technological Leapfrogging in China’s Clean Energy Sector. Her recent book, Green Innovation in China: China’s Wind Power Industry and the Global Transition to a Low-Carbon Economy, was awarded the 2014 Harold and Margaret Sprout Award by the International Studies Association for best book of the year in environmental studies. Dr. Lewis is a non-resident faculty affiliate with the China Energy Group at Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory. She also serves as an international adviser to the Energy Foundation China Sustainable Energy Program in Beijing, and is a lead author of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change's Fifth Assessment Report. She serves on the advisory boards of the Asia Society's Center on US-China Relations and the American Council on Renewable Energy's US-China Program. Dr. Lewis has a PhD and MA from the University of California, Berkeley, where she focused on energy and resources; and an AB from Duke University in environmental science and policy.

Helen McNeill has been the consultant to the Georgetown Leadership Seminar since 2000. She also consults for other academic programs and international groups. From 1992 until 1999, she worked for the National Trust for Historic Preservation as the International Affairs Program Director at the Woodrow Wilson House and has also held posts at the Meridian International Center, the Environmental Film Festival, and at the Washington National Cathedral. She holds a BA from Rosemont College and an MA from the University of Pennsylvania, and studied at the University of Vienna.

Mahmoud Mohieldin is the World Bank Group Senior Vice President for the 2030 Development Agenda, United Nations Relations, and Partnerships. Before joining the World Bank, Mohieldin held numerous senior positions in the government of Egypt, including Minister of Investment from 2004 until 2010. He also served on several boards of directors, including the Central Bank of Egypt, as well as in the banking and corporate sector. He was a member of the Commission on Growth and Development and was selected as a Young Global Leader of the World Economic Forum. He is a professor of economics and finance at Cairo University, an honorary professor at Durham University and a member of the Advisory Board of the Durham Business School. He also held leading positions in national and regional research centers and think tanks. He has authored numerous publications and articles in English and Arabic in leading journals in the fields of international finance, economics, and development. Dr. Mohieldin received his doctorate in economics from the University of Warwick, MSc in economics and social policy analysis from the University of York, and BSc in economics, first in the order of merit, from Cairo University. He is a member of the Georgetown Leadership Seminar class of 2003.

Irfan Nooruddin is Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani Professor of Indian Politics and Faculty Chair in the Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown. He is also a member of the School's Asian Studies Program, directs the Georgetown India Initiative, and advises the student-run Georgetown-India Dialogue. His most recent book – co-authored with Thomas Edward Flores – is Elections in Hard Times: Building Stronger Democracies in the 21st Century (2016). He is also the author of Coalition Politics and Economic Development: Credibility and the Strength of Weak Governments (2011). Professor Nooruddin specializes in the study of comparative economic development and policymaking, democratization and democratic institutions, and international institutions. He has been a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, D.C., and is a team member with Lokniti: Program on Comparative Democracy at the Centre for the Study of Developing Societies, New Delhi. From 2003-2014 Dr. Nooruddin was Assistant Professor and Associate Professor in the Department of Political Science at The Ohio State University. He earned a BA from Ohio Wesleyan University and an MA and PhD from the University of Michigan.
